Section F – Emergency and Medical Services

Current Regulation

F1.1. All emergency vehicles are licensed based on their suitability for the particular tasks required of them and the equipment carried being as detailed in the appropriate section of the tables on pages 101 to 103. All units and equipment are at all times to be of appropriate specification and kept serviceable, clean, tidy and in a hygienic condition. Where appropriate, test certificates and time expired consumables are to be 'in date', with good quality copies of current certificates carried on-board the vehicle.

Proposed Regulation

F1.1. All emergency vehicles are licensed based on their suitability for the particular tasks required of them and the equipment carried being as detailed in the appropriate section of the tables on pages 101 to 103. All units and equipment are at all times to be of appropriate specification and kept serviceable, clean, tidy and in a hygienic condition. Where ~~appropriate~~ required by the manufacturer, test certificates and time expired consumables are to be 'in date' and be undertaken by either the manufacturer or a manufacturer approved agent, with good quality copies of current certificates carried on-board the vehicle.

Date of implementation: 1 January 2022

Reason: To ensure where required by the manufacturer all equipment undergoes servicing by either the manufacturer or approved agent.
